

Return to Workplace Screening Tool

Businesses across the world are considering their back to workplace plans and what this means for their employees. This brings up crucial questions to ensure a successful transition for everyone, including:

How can I protect my employees' health and safety?

How can we continue to comply with our Duty of Care obligations in this new and challenging environment?

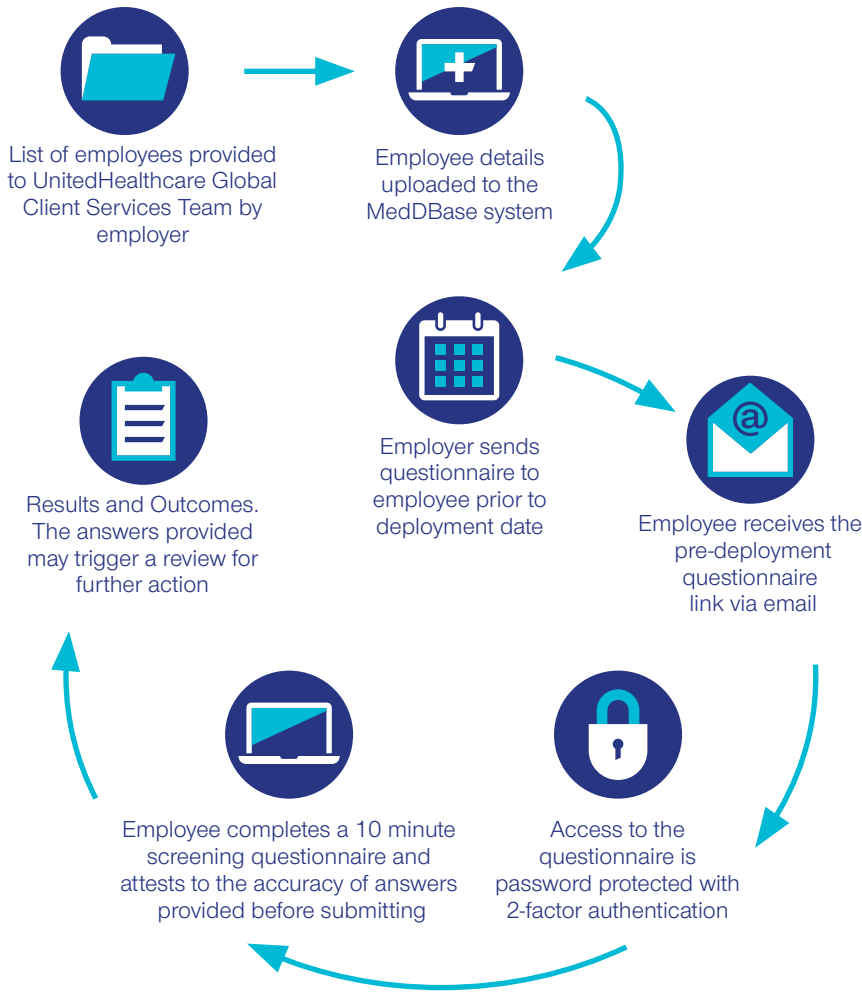

Employers' Duty of Care still remains the same, to ensure their employees are protected in their place of work, but how employers do this will have changed in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

What is the Return to Workplace Tool?

To help employers navigate this new landscape, UnitedHealthcare Global has designed a 'Return to Workplace tool' – an online health screening service for clients to monitor the health and wellness of their global workforce.

Using a simple online pre-deployment medical screening questionnaire, we can identify responses which may require further intervention and alert HR teams to decide whether further action is required. It has been designed to highlight COVID-19 exposure and any changes in their employees' health and wellbeing that may have developed since last in their workplace.

How it works:

Benefits:

- Quick — It only takes 10 minutes to complete
- Detailed — Full reporting and audit trail of screening employees
- Secure — Information held on secure MedDBase platform
- Responsible — Peace of mind for employees that their company is putting their health and safety first
- Futureproof — Employers receive a report on the employee's health and wellbeing, which allows them manage future planning
